

10.6.10 Does your university as a body have reasonable accommodation policy/strategy implemented, including adequately funded mechanism for persons with disabilities?

Qassim University has a comprehensive reasonable accommodation policy and strategy to support individuals with disabilities, ensuring they have equal opportunities to succeed in their academic and extracurricular activities. The policy includes a variety of measures, including:

1. Accessible Infrastructure: The university has implemented physical infrastructure improvements such as ramps, accessible entrances, and appropriate signage to ensure that individuals with disabilities can easily navigate the campus.
2. Academic Accommodations: The university provides reasonable academic accommodations for students with disabilities, including extended exam times, note-taking services, and access to alternative formats for study materials. These accommodations are made in consultation with students to ensure that their individual needs are met.
3. Assistive Technologies: To support students with visual or hearing impairments, Qassim University provides a range of assistive technologies such as screen readers, voice recognition software, and hearing aids. These technologies help students access academic content, participate in class, and complete assignments effectively.
4. Dedicated Support Services: The university offers a dedicated disability support office where students with disabilities can request accommodations, seek counseling, and receive guidance on navigating university life. This office works closely with faculty, staff, and students to create an inclusive academic environment.
5. Funding for Disability Services: The university ensures that the reasonable accommodation mechanisms are adequately funded, including financial support for necessary tools, equipment, and staff to assist students with disabilities. This enables the continued development and implementation of accessible services.

By providing these accommodations and support services, Qassim University is committed to creating an inclusive and equitable environment for students with disabilities.
